Gun politics is an area of American politics defined by two primary opposing ideologies about civilian gun ownership. People who advocate for gun control support increasing regulations related to gun ownership; people who advocate for gun rights support decreasing regulations related to gun ownership. These groups often disagree on the interpretation of laws and court cases related to firearms ...

You people that believe there is a national database are smoking too much weed you are paranoid! For every gun manufactured or imported in the US is test fired 2 times, the first round is kept on file by the manufacturer or the company that conducted the test fire..

Are Guns Registered in a National Firearms Registry

The question of gun rights is a political question, in the broad sense that it touches on the distribution of power in a polity. Thus, although it incorporates all these perfectly legitimate “sub-political” activities, it is not fundamentally about hunting, or collecting, or target practice; it is about empowering the citizen relative to the state.

The Rifle on the Wall: A Left Argument for Gun Rights

>Let’s say 200,000 “foreigners” (from where, by the way?) and 73 million gun owners. I imagine you could get millions, tens of millions, of young men willing to do violence if you promise them free looting in the US and sorta-kind of imply that they could stay and live in the US afterwards, even if it should be obvious to them that the US afterwards wouldn’t be what they imagine it to be.
