The Infrared Handbook has been prepared by the Infrared Information and Analysis (IRIA) Center as a replacement for the Handbook of Military Infrared Technology, which was published in 1965.

The Infrared Handbook: William L. Wolfe, George J. Zissis

This 3-volume set summarizes current research activities into the fundamental properties of doped nanomaterials and their applications in the fields of electronics, photonics, optics, homeland security and medical sciences.

Photometry is the science of the measurement of light, in terms of its perceived brightness to the human eye. It is distinct from radiometry, which is the science of measurement of radiant energy (including light) in terms of absolute power. In modern photometry, the radiant power at each wavelength is weighted by a luminosity function that models human brightness sensitivity.

Photometry (optics) - Wikipedia

Nonimaging optics (also called anidolic optics) is the branch of optics concerned with the optimal transfer of light radiation between a source and a target. Unlike traditional imaging optics, the techniques involved do not attempt to form an image of the source; instead an optimized optical system for optimal radiative transfer from a source to a target is desired.
