Improving in the Profession. The teacher, as a professional person, is strengthened by improving: (a) his knowledge of subject matter, the techniques and the processes of inquiry in which he guides his learners; (b) his knowledge of the learning process; and (c) his knowledge of teaching techniques.

The Teacher as a Person - ASCD

In the first case there is knowledge; in the second belief; in the third ignorance. But for our purposes the important point is that in the first case, the student's acceptance of the reasons is a process internal to the student--and, in the end, mysterious: the teacher may provide the occasion for learning but cannot do more.

We may examine the question from another point of view in our effort to arrive at an understanding of who is the Teacher. One of the difficulties confronting the earnest student of Theosophy, especially when reading the early literature of the Society, revolves around the question of who wrote what. This may seem a strange statement,
